

Ronald McDonald

---

Title/Company:

HR Development Specialist

NASA Marshall Space Flight Center

Office of Human Capital / Organization and Leadership Development Office

As a Professional Development Consultant, Mr. McDonald serves as a strategic change agent to assist the Center's leadership in achieving Agency goals additionally providing consultative services in the area of individual, team and organizational performance optimization strategies. Additionally he serves as program manager for executive and technical leadership development activities and initiatives.

---

Education:

Bachelor of Business Administration- Athens State University 12/2002.

Mr. currently serves as Program Manager of Marshall's Full-Time Study and Part-Time Study academic program. Mr. McDonald also serves as the project manager of a newly formed agency leadership development program design for GS 9-12.

Mr. McDonald is married to the former Karla Moore and he has five children; Ashley, Melanie, Davron, Darius, and Devin, ranging in ages from 21 years old to 13 years old. Ron stays busy with family, children, and home responsibilities. Ronald is a Huntsville, Alabama native and a graduate of Butler High School. He began participating in sports as a young child cumulating into a football scholarship to the University of North Alabama, after having a stand out athletic career in basketball, football, and track at Butler High School. He remains an avid sports fan today and active athlete. He is a member of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc., Masonic Lodge 50A, and the Progressive Union Missionary Baptist Church.